

The Canadian Institute for Health Information

The Canadian Institute for Health Information (CIHI) is an independent, not-for-profit organization that provides essential information on Canada's health system and the health of Canadians.

The Health Sciences Association of Saskatchewan refers to CIHI's independent research when talking about the relative lack of specialized health care professionals in Saskatchewan.

Please note the following examples: (You can click on the report links below or copy the website address into your Browser's Address bar)

http://secure.cihi.ca/cihiweb/products/PT_2010Report_EN.pdf

Physiotherapists in Canada 2009

- Page 12 of this independent research report shows that Saskatchewan has the lowest number of physiotherapists per 100,000 population of any Western Canadian province.

<https://secure.cihi.ca/estore/productFamily.htm?locale=en&pf=PFC1557&lang=en&media=0>

Occupational Therapists in Canada 2009

- Page 12 of this independent research report shows that Saskatchewan has the lowest number of occupational therapists per 100,000 population of any Canadian province.

<https://secure.cihi.ca/estore/productFamily.htm?locale=en&pf=PFC1401&lang=en&media=0>

Canada's Health Care Providers: 2008 Provincial Profiles

- This independent research report provides the latest available inter-provincial comparisons for a number of health care professions. The provincial comparisons in this document show that Saskatchewan has the lowest number of Respiratory Therapists per 100,000 population of all Canadian provinces, and the lowest number of Audiologists per 100,000 population of all Western Canadian provinces.